

Ambassador Design Pattern

The ambassador design pattern is used to connect containers with the outside world. In this design pattern, the helper container can send network requests on behalf of the main application. It is nothing but a proxy that allows other containers to connect to a port on the localhost.

Ambassador in brief is a container that proxy the network connection to the main container.

